About Polo Forest

Polo Forest was once part of a vast kingdom, with Vijaynagar as its capital around 600 years ago. The region served as a significant pilgrimage site for Jain and Shivadharml communities. The ancient city was developed along the banks of the Harnav River and featured four intricately sculpted gates made from local sedimentary rock, positioned in each direction. Though many temples were destroyed during the Mughal era, their ruins now stand as heritage sites, reflecting the area's rich cultural and historical legacy.

Today, Polo Forest is a protected sanctuary known for its rich biodiversity. The dense jungle is home to wildlife such as leopards, bears, pythons, and spiders, along with over 600 species of trees. The Harnav River and reservoir support a variety of water birds and crabs. Maintained by the Dholwani Range Forest Department, the area is preserved for both conservation and tourism. A government-established campsite also promotes nature education and eco-tourism, making Polo Forest a unique blend of heritage and natural beauty.
